ONEREPUBLIC

OneRepublic rose to prominence in 2007, when "Apologize" began its reign as the most popular digital download in American history. Although the song proved to be a quick success, OneRepublic had spent five years touring the musical minor leagues before its release, with Ryan Tedder splitting his time between the band's work and production gigs for other artists. Tedder and Zach Filkins formed the band in 2002 adding keyboardist Drew Brown, bassist/cellist Brent Kutzle, and drummer Eddie Fisher to the lineup. OneRepublic's soared on MySpace, and Tedder helped raise the group's profile by penning songs for artists like Blake Lewis and Hilary Duff. Hip-hop producer Timbaland took notice of the group's audience and signed OneRepublic to his own Mosley Music Group, a joint venture with Interscope Records. Timbaland also remixed one of the group's most promising tracks, "Apologize," and included it on his own album, 2007's Timbaland Presents Shock Value. Later that year, OneRepublic stepped out on their own with Dreaming Out Loud, their debut album, quickly went gold. Another Tedder-penned track, Leona Lewis' "Bleeding Love," experienced similar success at the same time, thus making Tedder one of the year's most celebrated songwriters. OneRepublic began writing songs for a second album in 2008, and the group later decamped to Colorado Springs to avoid outside distractions. Waking Up was completed in September 2009. "All the Right Moves," the album's lead single, was released to radio that same month, while the entire album followed in November.

BROOMSTOCK 2010

The City and County of Broomfield in partnership with Broomfield Council on the Arts and Humanities invite teens and their families to attend the 11th Annual Broomstock event will take place from 11:00-6:00 p.m. on Thursday, May 27 at the Broomfield Community Commons Park. This event features live music, food, and activities like a graffiti wall. Broomstock is a hybrid of Broomfield and Woodstock and was the brainchild of area high school students. The teens were looking for a fun and safe way to celebrate the last day of school. Local bands are always eager to participate in Broomstock and several years ago, The Fray performed at this community event. Musical genres include alternative, pop, hip hop, rock and hardcore. In conjunction with Broomstock, local teens will be displaying samples of their visual art in the Broomfield Auditorium.
