THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 6

“Mission Migration”: Fueling Migratory Birds

Migration is a difficult time for birds. This annual, epic journey is fraught with perils for our feathered friends. Learn how you can increase the odds of their success on this trek across the continent with David Menough, owner of Wild Birds Unlimited. David will discuss fascinating insights concerning bird migration and show you the importance of providing the most healthful fueling station to help our avian amigos on their voyage.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 3

“Spider Sense”: Eight Reasons to Love Spiders

Come learn about spiders with Butterfly Pavilion at Broomfield Open Space Fall Speaker Series. Mary Ann Colley, Vice President of Science and Conservation, will demystify these eight-legged creatures, covering basic biology, cultural ties, technology, a bit of myth-busting and more; all showcasing the importance and value of spiders. Don't miss out, Butterfly Pavilion will be bringing live spiders from around the world for you to check out!

MONDAY, DECEMBER 17

“Nature Play in the City”: Connecting Children to the Natural World

Transforming playgrounds into natural, health-promoting spaces for young children can offer many benefits for children's healthy development. Sarah Konradi, Early Childhood Health Outdoors Program Director for National Wildlife Federation, offers ideas on creating and renovating outdoor spaces with the objective of supporting physical activity, healthy eating, and outdoor learning while sharing effective design solutions for engaging and safe nature play.
